

New opportunity for career development

Emergency Department

Senior Research Nurse, Band 6

Maternity Cover

37.5hrs/week (full time) for 12 months

The Emergency Department at the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh has a worldwide reputation for research. In order to coordinate and support the expanding portfolio of research, audit and service improvement, the Emergency Medicine Research Group Edinburgh (EMERGE) was formed in 2008 and continues to grow.

We are currently recruiting for an experienced, band 6 research nurse to coordinate and support a range of research projects. The post will involve screening and recruitment activities, assisting with the care of research participants, teaching, and collecting and managing research data. The scope of studies and projects is expanding, creating an exciting and leading research specialty to work within.

We are looking for an enthusiastic nurse with a genuine interest and in research, who has experience working in research and/or the Emergency Department or critical/acute care setting. The successful candidate will need to understand the dynamic and challenging environment of the ED and how that translates to research activity. The post holder will work alongside other senior research nurses and will be supported by the EMERGE team.

Secondment will be subject to agreement from your Line Manager.

For more information and to arrange an informal visit to the department please contact:

Miranda Odam

Research Nurse Manager

EMERGE, Emergency Department

Tel 0131 242 3857

Miranda.Odam@nhslothian.scot.nhs.uk

Julia Grahamslaw

Senior Research Nurse

EMERGE, Emergency Department

Tel 0131 242 3860

Julia.Grahamslaw@nhslothian.scot.nhs.uk

Closing date for applications: 20th August 2018 Reference: NHSL/2018/0183/R1

For information on how to apply please go to SHOW website or contact:
Recruitment Centre, St John's Hospital Howden Road West, Livingston, EH54 6PP
Tel: 0131 536 3030 (24hrs) or email recruitment@nhslothian.scot.nhs.uk